This outfitter hunts all four major herds of the arctic plain, which combined number around 700,000.

Unlike most caribou hunts these are conducted on the calving grounds where they live. There's no need to hope-n-pray 'bou are going to arrive. From May to September they are there. And have been for centuries !

The combined hunting territories encompass the majority of the arctic plain from east to west, and from the continental divide to the Arctic Ocean. They have thousands of square miles to hunt. Fortunately for you there are caribou all across and they know it well. This outfitter has little to no hunting competition for these 'bou.

Don't be disappointed waiting for 'bou that never come. Hunt with the best!
